ASSUMPTION of MARY

Many have twisted the memory of Mary to fit in with how they think women should behave. They presented her as meek and mild, weak, passive and submissive. The problem with that is it contradicts every one of the ten stories we have of the Mother of Jesus in Scripture. St Luke's portrait of Mary is so straight-forward, true and beautiful that in our Hail Mary prayer we echo Elizabeth's blessing: 'Blessed are you among women, and blessed is the fruit of your womb.' We honor Mary as the young woman who put her whole life and self at the service of God's plan, who let the Holy Spirit empower her to become the Mother of Jesus. She does not let her surprise and fear stop her from saying 'yes' to God. We became convinced that God raised Jesus' Mother as a complete person, body and soul intact. That shared belief of the whole ancient Church was proclaimed by Pope Pius XII in 1950 as a truth revealed by God. The belief points ahead to what God will do for us, that our whole person, body, mind, heart and spirit, will be raised to a new existence in the presence, peace, and happiness of God. But Mary gives us hope not just for the afterlife, but also for the challenges and struggles of this everyday life. She praises God because 'the Almighty has done great things for me'. She is the mother of all who are oppressed, overlooked, scorned, abused, or neglected. Mary is no weak, silent, passive woman. It comes as no surprise therefore that poor, suffering people keep looking to her for inspiration and help. We see them on our television screens carrying her statue with dignity and pride. Clearly they are not afraid, clearly they believe in a higher power, a power outside themselves and greater than themselves, Clearly they believe that the woman we celebrate, Mary, is a strong but gentle mother, who makes their hopes for the world her own, and their prayers for the world her prayers too.
